

Documentation

In our project, we pitched on a lot of ideas. By majority vote, we went for something like the game Draw Something or Scribbleio, where the user could either draw a given word or guess that given drawing. We decided to overall go with Spongebob theme as we all liked the show and thought it'll look funny in a webpage. Below is our timeline of the modifications we made throughout the whole project:

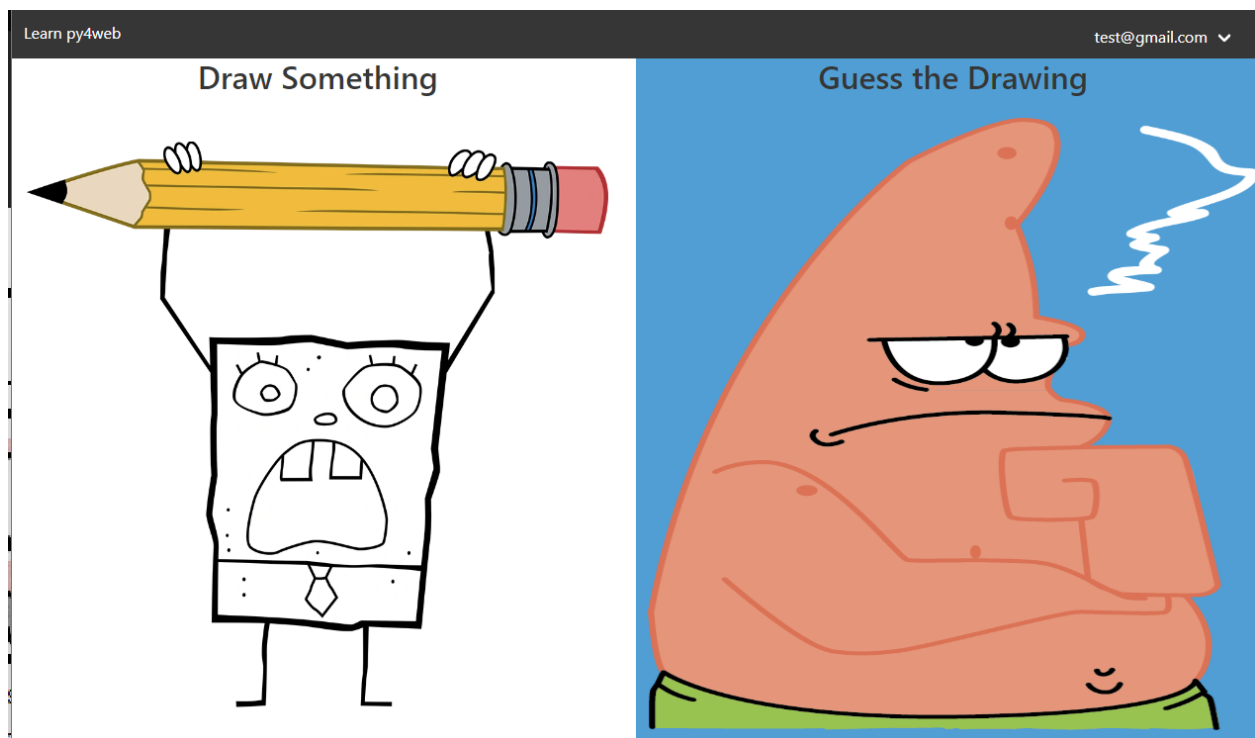

Contributors: Derrick Vo, Minho Kim, Nathan Laureta, Jose Saldivia

5/28/2023

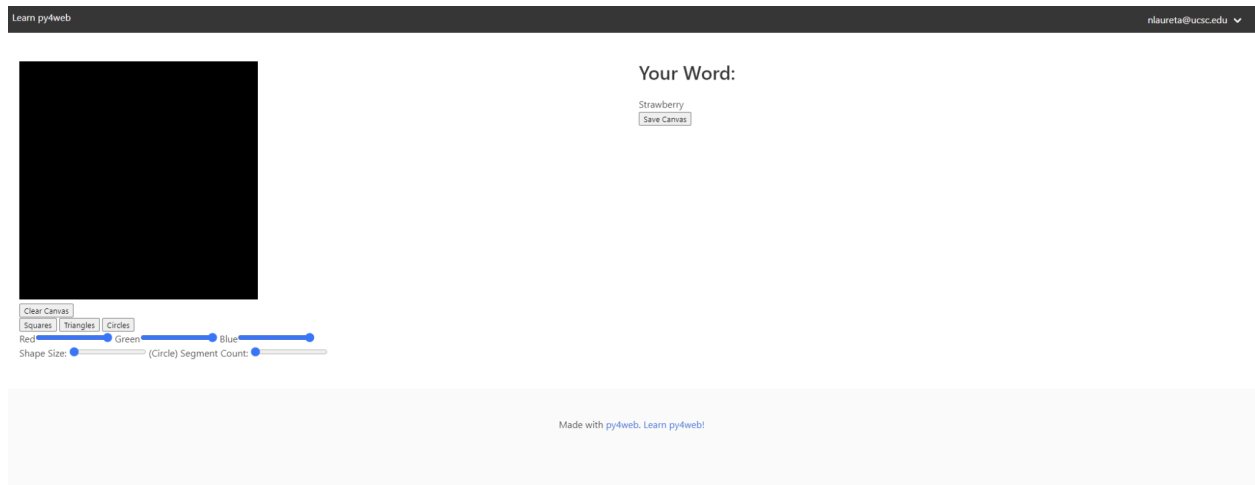

Main menu

Homepage for user to choose whether to draw or guess the drawing

Drawing and word page. Drawing and word ID saved together when clicking Save Canvas.

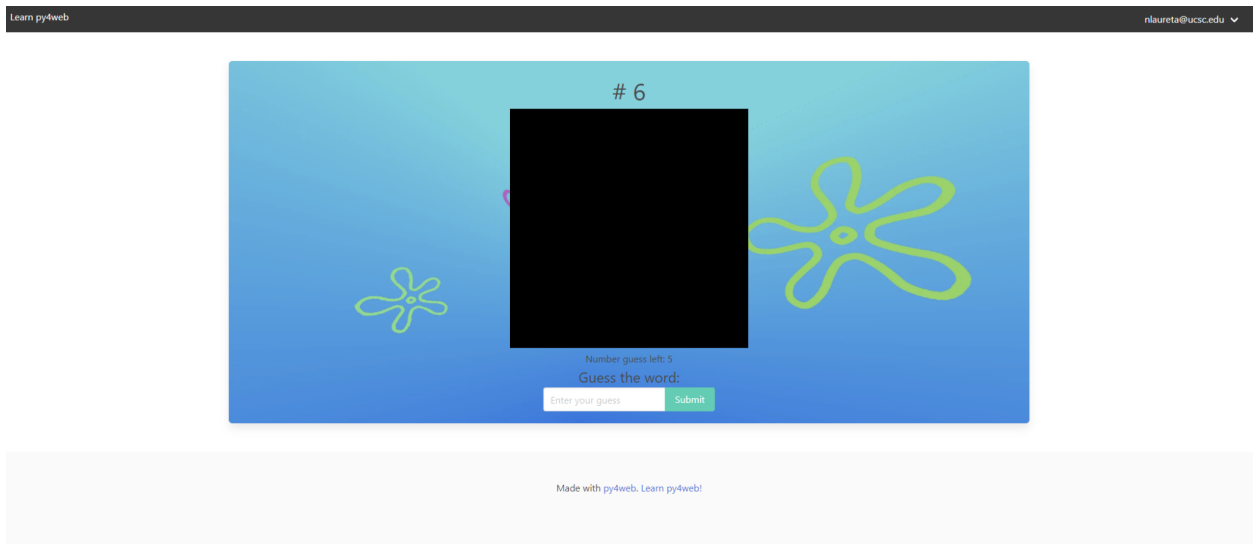

Design for word guess page. The drawing in the middle. Top displays how many letters the word has. Guesses decrement displayed and the word to guess below.

draw/wordGuess

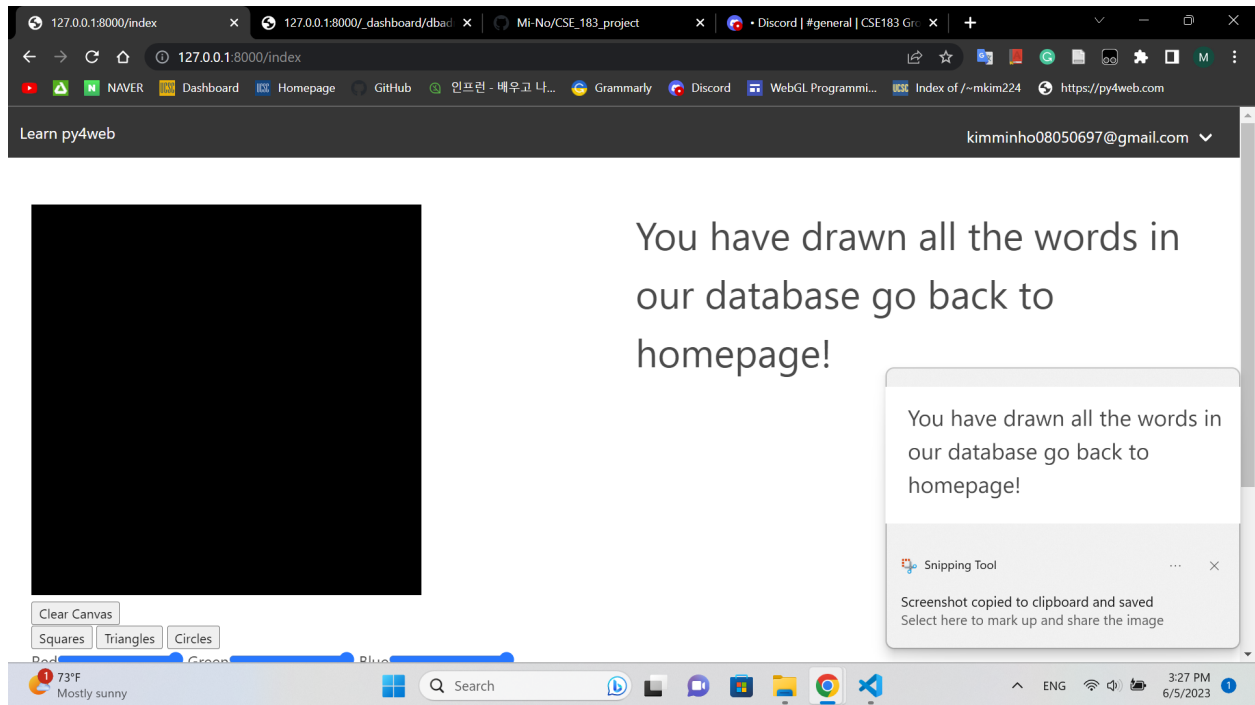

The guess page based on design. Debating whether the canvas background should always be black or white.

6/4/2023

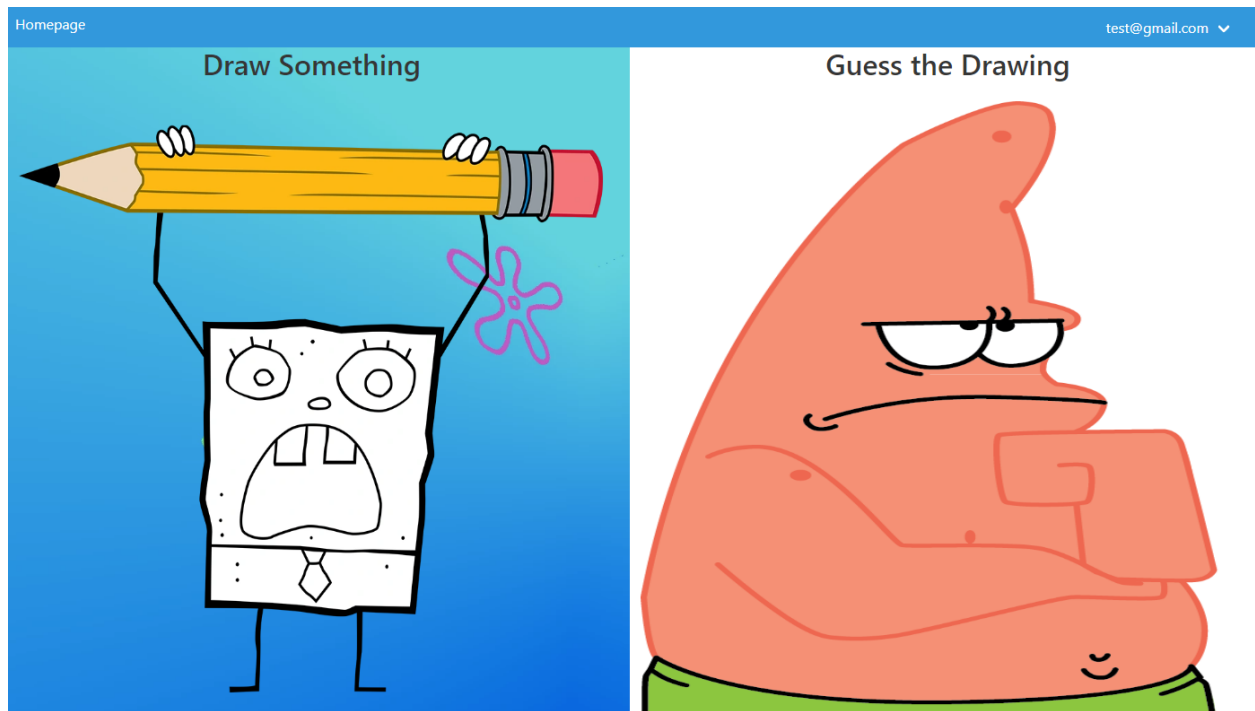

If user draws all the word in our database it will show this message

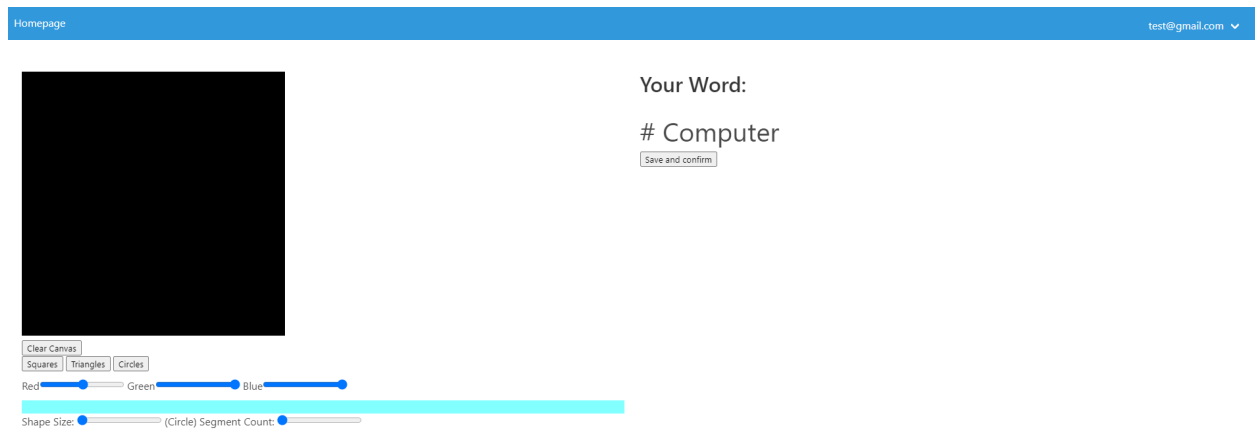

Changed the top bar color and button to redirect to Homepage

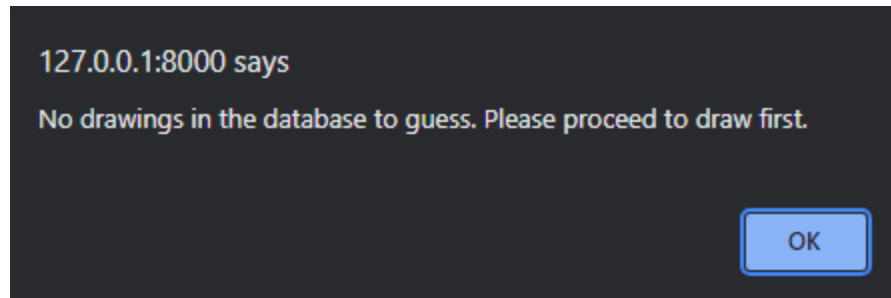

Little styling of the homepage

Added color bar below RGB sliders

In homepage, if clicked on Guess the Drawing with no drawings in the database, alert message appears.

New word button added to draw page to get new word when clicked

Your Word:

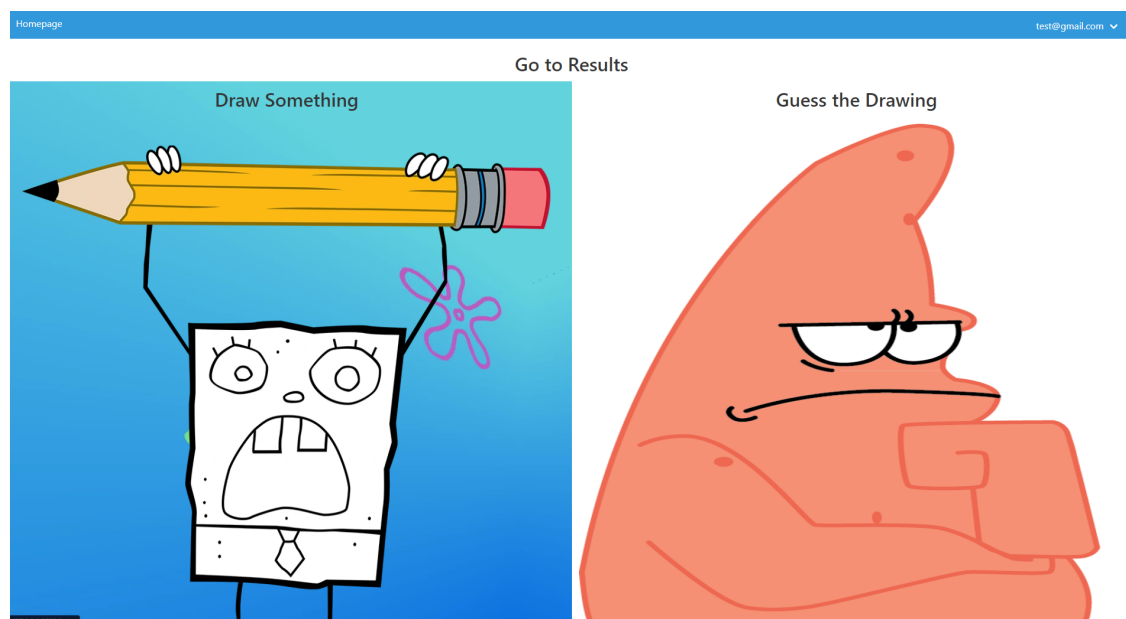

Fairy

New Word ↻

Save and confirm

6/8/2023

Added results page button in the homepage

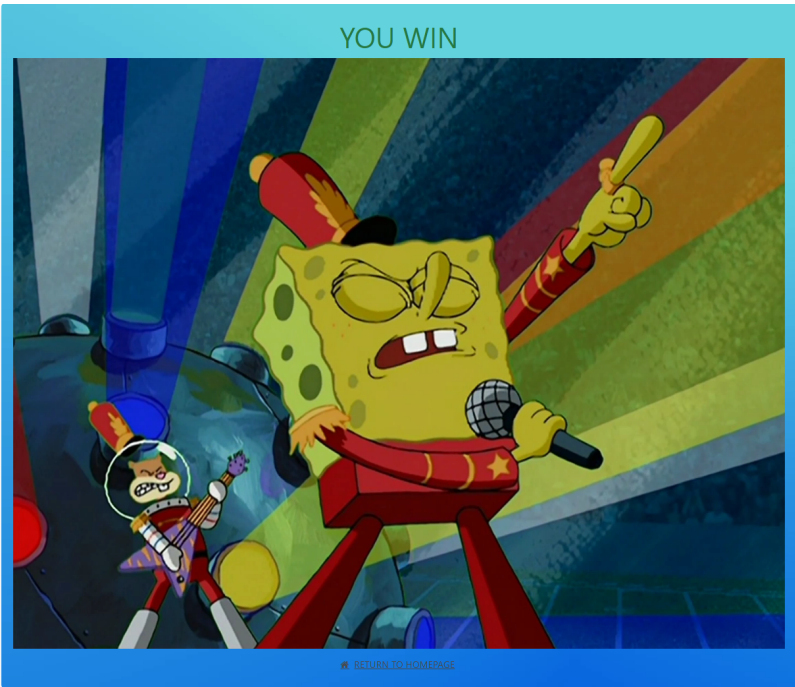

Added results page which shows the results of what drawings you got correct

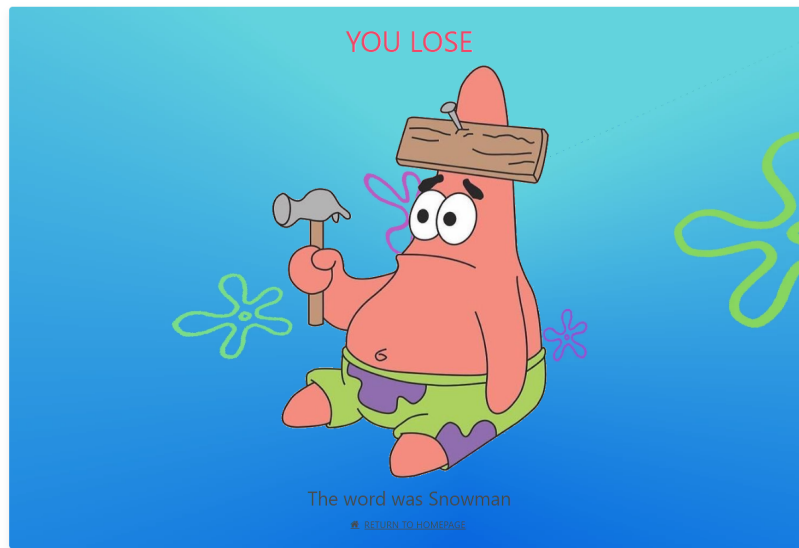

Homepage test@gmail.com

Your Game Results

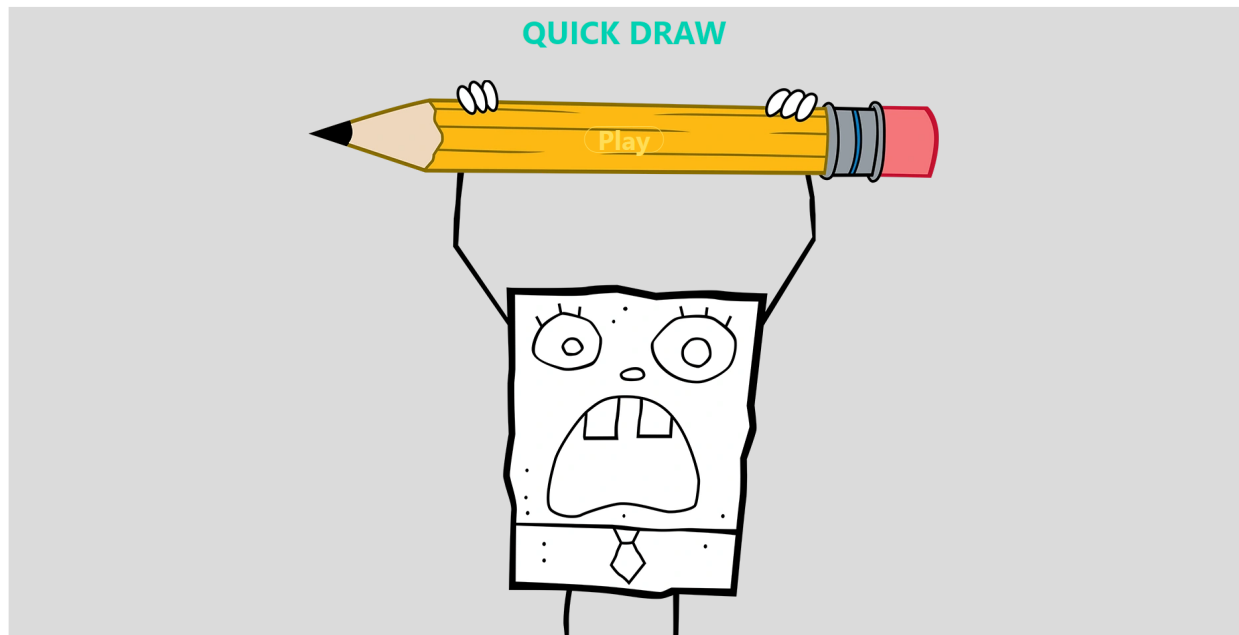

Username	Win	Answer	Drawing
test	False	Waffles
test	False	Monkey
test	False	Snowflake
test	True	Kitchen

Win/Lose page styling. Added sounds and pictures.

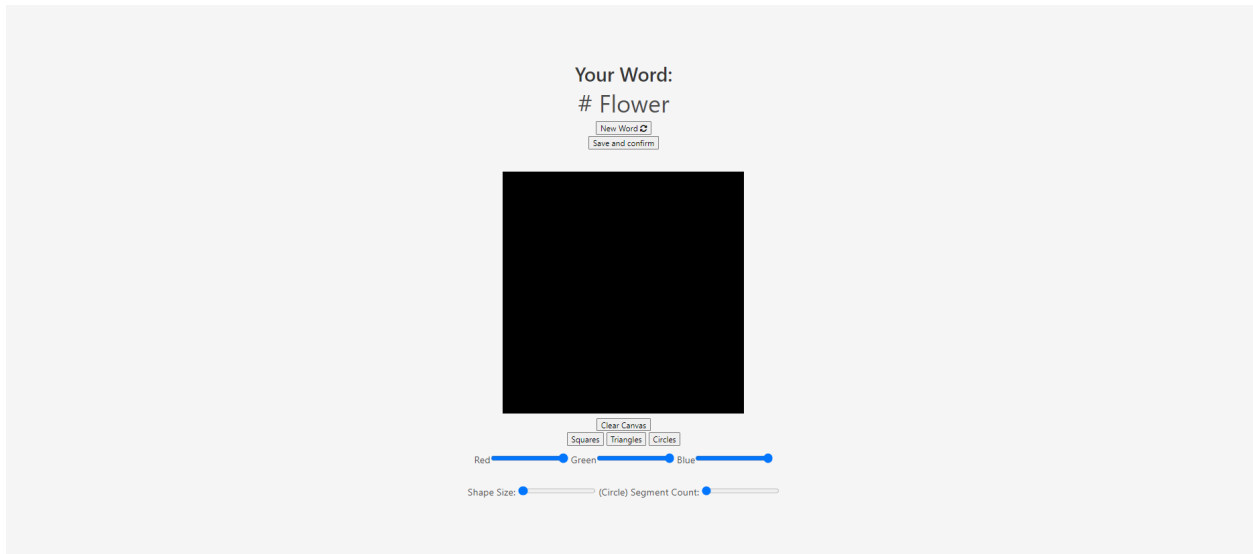

Little styling of the main menu

Draw page styling

6/9/2023

Turn in date.